

1. A linear model $\eta = X\beta$ called the systematic component.
2. A random component describing the distribution of the measured entries of a response vector y and its vector of expected values $\mu = E(y)$.
3. A link function between the random and systematic components, $\eta = g(\mu)$, applied component-wise to the vector μ .